

Saint Stanislaus College Wins First Climate Change-LCDS Secondary Schools Quiz

<http://acgny.org/news111011.html>

St. Stanislaus College in Georgetown emerged Champions of the first ever Climate Change-LCDS¹ Secondary Schools Quiz which was broadcast on NCN for the past three weeks.

The Quiz was organized by the Office for Climate Change in the Office of the President in collaboration with the Ministry of Education and NCN. It featured sixteen secondary schools drawn from all ten regions of Guyana with veteran broadcaster and Quizmaster Dr. Rovin Deodat presiding.

The Final was played between Berbice High School and St. Stanislaus, with Saints getting the better of the School from Region six. At the prize-giving ceremony Mr. Shyam Nokta, Head of the Office of Climate Change, congratulated both teams who made it to the finals and thanked all the schools that took part in the Quiz for their excellent showing and their contribution to educating the Guyanese public on Climate Change and the LCDS.

Students from all the teams in the Quiz received special gifts for their participation as well as special gifts for winning in each match as they moved forward. The Champions, St. Stanislaus College, received the winners-trophy and a grand trip to the Guyana's magnificent Kaieteur Falls as their special prize.

The Winners – St Stanislaus College

Runner's Up – Berbice High School

Office of Climate Change
Office of the President
10 November 2011

¹ Guyana's Low Carbon Development Strategy